Moving Forward

I'm Going Back to East Asia!

Ever since I went to East Asia two years ago, I have had a huge desire to go back. Well, Campus Crusade has asked me to lead a team of students this summer on a very similar trip and I'm definitely excited to do so. East Asia has one of the fastest growing Christian populations in the world. These people are accepting Christ in full knowledge that they may be persecuted for their faith, yet God is so at work, that they would gladly give up their lives to serve Him. Over the last ten years, Cal Poly has sent hundreds of students to East Asia both in the summer and for the entire year. The success we have seen has been amazing! Each time we go, we send our students to the same college campus and we do not leave that campus until the East Asian students are functioning fully as a body of Christ. This includes students discipling other students and leading their friends to Christ. Well, over the last ten years, we have been at three different campuses. The team that is currently on campus there has just told me that the East Asian students are ready...they do not need us there anymore! Therefore, this summer has the potential to look really exciting. The team of students and I that are going from Cal Poly may be opening up a brand new campus. This means new students, new places, and new challenges, but with how much God is at work all over Asia, it is no surprise to see our teams moving to a new campus. I'm definitely excited to go back and for what God is going to do.

Previously in East Asia...

On my last trip to East Asia, Kris, one of my teammates, and I met a group of 3 guys. These three guys seemed to be pretty interested and so following God's lead, Kris shared the gospel with them on the first meeting. We met with them several more times, but with no response each time. Three days later, I met with Michael alone. I once again shared the gospel and left him with a choice at the end. He looked at me and said, "I want to believe, but I don't know enough about Jesus yet." Well, at this point, I knew he was ready and my heart was beating so loudly I'm sure Michael heard it. So we discussed the life of Jesus more and once again I brought it to a choice for him. And he accepted Christ right there. I know Michael was excited, but that didn't come close to how excited I was. I can't explain the joy that I saw on his face and the brotherly love that I now felt for him. After talking to him about a couple more things, we scheduled a time to get together so I could disciple him further. On the day of our meeting I saw Michael walking up, but he had a friend, Bill, with him. I wasn't sure exactly how to handle this situation with him bringing a non-Christian so I just did the discipleship anyway. We talked about making Christ the highest priority in our lives and sharing Christ with our friends. At the end of the meeting, Bill, the non-Christian, looked at me and said, "Kyle, I want Jesus to be the center of my life." It is amazing to see how God works even outside of our plans.
